Jennifer had a Zoom meeting with student interns and supervisors today. Working with faculty members and supervisors to look at the standards and internship. All interns were told to get everything they can into LiveText to document what they've done this semester. They will be reviewed on an individual basis and to make sure they have meet the standards to be recommended for certification. If the schools are going to use Google Classroom, they will also be a part of teaching online as well as part of their internship.

- Working on SEO (Search Engine Optimization) training and our website. It's important that our website is good as it can be and ranking high in the search engines so we can be more competitive.
  - Working with Marketing & Communications through social media doing some campaigns. Asking Students, Faculty, and Staff to send photos to share of what it's like working and learning from home.
  - Pushing SouthCares on social media to let students know there are resources on campus for them.
  - Monthly Newsletter – still planning to send out. Will send a call for information.
  - Flyers – Will work with departments to design a one-page flyer to send out to your students.
  - Pillar's Magazine – still moving forward. Send information to Amber.
  - Dr. Kent requested a push on social media for graduate school, in particular, the Education Excellence Scholarship, and for all Graduate Programs for summer admission.
- Still collecting data on surveys. Issues with field experience surveys and assessments.
  - Working on analyses for possible new entry requirements for students coming into candidacy. The State is looking to move away from Core. Will have some recommendations to the Dean on how to move forward for entry requirements for students coming into candidacy.
  - Title II reporting. The Feds have changed some reporting requirements; having to reach out to chairs for more information.
